Chapter 1 by lightningstrikesannah (I'm back!)

PROLOGUE

"Puddles of mysterious goo have been found in a local fast food restaurant. Customers have also been reporting strange tasting food, and the restaurant is set to be closed permanently next week."

Will Burrell glanced at the newspaper angrily, and threw it into the trash. Taking deep breaths to calm himself down, he realized something. It didn't matter if the restaurant closed down, for the damage had already been done.

Chapter 2 by Aidan

Slushing, oozing, corrupting. The slime with its infinite hunger, ate away the essential cells of life. Its previous victim, an elderly rat had been consumed under the red of the fast food bench. The store had evacuated. That was a shame, for there would've been food... So much food...

"Let's take it down boys!" CRASH! The old Carlo's Fast Food Diner toppled over, hit by a gargantuan wrecking ball. As the construction team kept working, the trapped sludge sensed blood.

It slid on top of the cheap white table, a mere purple stain on a white table. Just like any other victim, its task would be finished silent and unnoticed. With no moment to waste, the goo quickly expanded to a ginormous form, entrapping the workers within its bubble. Their screams were silent, muffled by the slime's interior. with a few seconds of kicking and moving, all ten construction workers fell limp to the ground almost at the same time. The goo accepted the feeling of euphoria that flowed throughout it, and after a few seconds, turned back to its normal form and started making its way to the open door that led out of the restaurant. It was time to gather the others.
